Our work matters deeply to God. After all, work is God’s idea! Work is a primary way we worship God and live out God’s purposes as we create and care for his world.

At work, we have the opportunity to bring kingdom values to bear; to be salt and light; to make our workplaces a context for human flourishing.

Even when our work is challenging, difficult or frustrating, it can be a place where we seek to fruitfully follow Jesus through service to others and our world; the place where day-by-day we build relationships with people who don’t know Jesus.

So work is not something we do to fill in time between church commitments – it is a vital context where we express our whole-life discipleship.

Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord, not for human masters

[Colossians 3:23]

Most Christians don’t work in churches – they spend most of their time in their workplace, wherever that happens to be: in an office, a hospital, a school, on a construction site, in their own business or in a mine.

But many Christians are not sure how to live out their faith deeply and effectively at work.

They are not sure how to connect their faith with their daily workplace issues. And they are not sure how their work makes any difference for God.

So, Malyon Workplace has been established to build a community of Christians with a vision for integrating faith and work – believers who see the workplace as a primary context for living out whole-life discipleship.

Our goal is to encourage any who are interested to see work as a way of service to God and their neighbours.

Malyon Workplace supports Christians in the workplace by conducting innovative and flexible seminars to equip disciples of Jesus to be salt and light in their workplace; by developing resources that can be used to assist local churches to support Christians in the workplace and developing a website that provides a one-stop shop for the rapidly expanding range of articles, resources and theological developments relevant to this important ministry.

Through coaching, intensives, seminars, preaching, and mentoring, Malyon Workplace endeavours to transform both their experience of work and their workplaces.

Currently, we rely on funding from Malyon College and some dedicated donors but more help is needed if we are to sustain and grow Malyon Workplace into the future.

So please consider supporting us as we endeavour to equip the people of God for fruitful mission in all of their life.
